The clause was, however, amonded, on motion of Mr. Sparks, so as to provide that the $300,000 shall be used salely for the improvement of the Mississippi Rice and its tributaries, and no part with a view to the improvement of private property. An amendment to increase the appropriation for the improvement of the Mississippi from $980,000 to $1,000,000, and another to reduce it to $700,000, were rejected. An amendment appropriating $25,000 for the improvement of the Monogabela River, in West Virginia, was adopted, as was also an amendment directing the Secretary of War to carry on the works contemplated in the bill by contract when not detrimental to the interests of the Government.

The amendment which, under these mission to take into consideration and nature such plan or plans and estimates is will correct permanently, locate and leepen the channel and protect the banks of the Mississippi River, improve and give safety and ease to the navigation thereof, prevent destructive floods, promote and facilitate commerce, trade, and the postal service." To impose any condition conflicting with the objects thus clearly stated is to go backward, and to that extent to defeat a great beneficent national work.
